是的, 我认为完全正确。

▶ Week sentiment has been a little bit of a drag recently, but the interesting thing to me is, and we'll get more detail on this today, is that that week sentiment hasn't actually caused spending in cash terms to fall that much.

我们今天将获得消费者支出和投资数据的最新情况。

▶ I actually think they're likely to remain strong.

我实际上认为它们可能会保持强劲。

▶ I think the bigger problem at the moment is that a lot of this spending isn't translating into higher real GDP because actually prices are going up quite quickly and therefore people are spending more businesses, spending more investment too, but a lot of that is going towards the higher price of the things they're buying as opposed to into real growth and business is getting more bang for their butt more goods and services for what they're spending.

我认为目前更大的问题是，许多支出并未转化为更高的实际GDP，因为实际上价格上涨很快，因此人们在企业和投资上花费更多，但其中很多都用于购买更高价格的商品，而非实际增长，企业从支出中获得了更多的商品和服务。

 00:04:43

🎧 Well, on real growth, I mean, you heard there, the chancellor said that these plans, her plans take time.

关于实际增长，你听到财政大臣说这些计划需要时间。

🎧 Were her plans the correct ones in the first place?

她的计划一开始是否正确？

🎧 Look, I think the government's sort of big early decisions in power a year ago in the, or just just under a year ago in the budget, have been very difficult for the economy because effectively the increase in the minimum wage and the employer national insurance contributions have raised the cost of employing people a lot and we are seeing the evidence of that in the jobs market, but also the weaker GDP data for Q2.

我认为政府大约一年前在预算中做出的早期重大决定对经济非常困难，因为最低工资和雇主国民保险缴费的增加大幅提高了雇佣成本，我们在就业市场看到了证据，第二季度的GDP数据也较弱。

 00:05:23

🎧 We also saw other taxes like stamp duty increase in Q2 that cause housing market activity to drop quite sharply in April.

我们还看到第二季度印花税等其他税收增加，导致4月房地产市场活动大幅下降。

🎧 And that's all likely to be a drag on the figures today.

所有这些都可能拖累今天的数据。

🎧 We're thinking that the economy probably expanded about 0.1% quarter and quarter in Q2, which is down from a very strong start to the year of 0.7% Q1Q.

我们认为第二季度经济可能环比增长约0.1%，低于第一季度0.7%的强劲开局。

 00:05:45

▶ But I think that's partly due to the effect of these tax changes and therefore it should be a temporary soft patch, but there's no doubt that the high attacks on employers is a drag on the number of people they're employing and therefore in turn the amount that those companies are making.

但我认为这在一定程度上是由于这些税收变化的影响，因此应该是暂时的疲软，但毫无疑问，对雇主的高税收拖累了他们雇佣的人数，进而影响了这些公司的盈利。

▶ So the tax changes you mentioned there, what about the impact of this trade war?

你提到的税收变化，贸易战的影响如何？

▶ Yeah, that's had a really big impact on the growth data as well.

是的，这对增长数据也有很大影响。

 00:06:16

▶ So that the trade war is one reason why GDP growth was so strong in the first quarter, 0.7% Q1Q mainly because US customers bought exports in from the UK earlier than usual, because they're worried that the US administration was going to apply tariffs.

贸易战是第一季度GDP增长强劲（0.7%）的原因之一，主要是因为美国客户比往常更早从英国购买出口商品，因为他们担心美国政府将征收关税。

▶ And that's going into reversing in the second quarter.

这在第二季度出现了逆转。

▶ So trade is likely to be a drag on the growth figures.

因此贸易可能会拖累增长数据。

 00:06:46

▶ But I think looking ahead, the UK is actually quite isolated from the effect of the trade war.

但我认为展望未来，英国实际上相对孤立于贸易战的影响。

▶ We don't really sell many goods into the US.

我们并未向美国销售很多商品。

▶ And of course we've got that deal for the 10% universal tariff on UK exports into the US now.

当然，我们现在达成了对英国出口到美国的商品征收10%普遍关税的协议。

▶ So I think for the UK economy, yes, the trade was unhelpful in the quarter to quarter volatility, but I don't expect it to be a major problem for growth going forward.

因此我认为对英国经济来说，贸易确实加剧了季度波动，但我预计它不会成为未来增长的主要问题。

 00:07:15

▶ Okay, Andrew Wishard, thank you very much.

好的，Andrew Wishard，非常感谢。

▶ Anna, your thoughts about the strength of the pound.

▶ I'm sorry, I didn't hear that.

抱歉，我没听清。

▶ I said, I just want your thoughts on the strength of the pound at the moment.

我说，我想听听你对当前英镑走强的看法。

▶ Yeah, as you mentioned, we've really got two conflicting things here.

是的，如你所言，我们这里确实有两件相互矛盾的事情。

 00:08:10

▶ We've got the US, which is looking like it's going to cut rates next next month.

美国看起来将在下个月降息。

▶ There's been a lot of pressures we've heard from Trump on the Federal Reserve to cut rates, but also they've had quite benign as you say inflation reading and a pretty weak jobs report, which just gives the fed that reason to cut rates by maybe 25 basis points of one quarter of 1% next month.

我们听到特朗普向美联储施压降息，而且如你所说，通胀数据相当温和，就业报告相当疲弱，这给了美联储下个月降息25个基点（即0.25%）的理由。

▶ That markets and I'm pricing that chance in at about 96% so they really think it's going to happen on the other hand, as we heard, Bailey governor Bailey of the of the bank of England, he was talking about how actually the monetary policy committee is facing some really tough decisions because we've got some quite stubborn inflation.

市场和我将这种可能性定价为约96%，因此他们真的认为这会发生；另一方面，如我们所闻，英国央行行长Bailey谈到货币政策委员会实际上正面临一些非常艰难的决定，因为我们有一些相当顽固的通胀。

 00:08:57

▶ We were just talking about rising costs of employment, that's feeds into services inflation and that means that rates are coming down to the right as much as we'd expect in the UK.

我们刚刚谈到雇佣成本上升，这会推高服务通胀，这意味着英国的利率不会像我们预期的那样下降。

▶ And if you can earn more by keeping your money in pounds, that that will encourage the strength of sterling.

如果你通过持有英镑赚取更多收益，那将鼓励英镑走强。

▶ It's not just sterling, we've seen rates as we're in, we've seen currencies all pretty strong against the dollar, which is down about 10% against basket currencies this year, but yeah, sterling is one of the chief beneficiaries of that.

不仅是英镑，我们看到所有货币对美元都相当强劲，美元今年对一篮子货币下跌约10%，但英镑是主要受益者之一。

 00:09:35

▶ You mentioned that Andrew Bailey saying that there are some tough decisions ahead.

你提到Andrew Bailey说前面有一些艰难的决定。

▶ I wonder if you could just elaborate on that.

我想知道你是否能详细说明一下。

▶ Yes, well, I think the MPC had to do an unprecedented two rounds of voting last time because they couldn't decide between whether they what was more important, is it the weakening economy or is it stubborn inflation?

是的，我认为货币政策委员会上次不得不进行前所未有的两轮投票，因为他们无法决定什么更重要，是经济疲弱还是顽固的通胀？

 00:09:56

▶ Their remit is to get inflation down to 2%, but it's about the high 3%, so 3.6%.

他们的职责是将通胀降至2%，但现在约为3.6%。

▶ So that's the problem they're facing.

这就是他们面临的问题。

▶ They've got a slowing economy, yet they have this stubborn inflation.

经济在放缓，但他们又有顽固的通胀。

▶ So that's the real quandary that they find themselves in.

这就是他们真正的困境。

▶ Now, the US they've got, I suppose the privilege of having the reserve currency in the world.

美国拥有世界储备货币的特权。

bilibili 00:10:22

▶ So even though they also have some very significant levels of debt, they are able to to to in a way get through that in a in in a different way.

因此尽管他们也有非常高的债务水平，但他们能够以不同的方式应对。

我们对债务水平更加脆弱，所有注意力都集中在Rachel Reeves的财政计划上，随着我们进入预算季，这种情况只会加剧。

▶ Now, whilst discussions and proposals for a third-run were at Heathrow Airport began back in the 1980s, they are still ongoing.

尽管希思罗机场第三条跑道的讨论和提案始于1980年代，但至今仍在进行中。

▶ Meanwhile, IGA Istanbul Airport began operating Europe's first triple independent runway system in April of this year.

与此同时，IGA伊斯坦布尔机场于今年4月开始运营欧洲首个三条独立跑道系统。

▶ The third runway has enabled an increasing capacity and also allowed IGA in Istanbul to maintain its status as Europe's busiest air hub for three consecutive years.

第三条跑道提高了容量，并使伊斯坦布尔IGA连续三年保持欧洲最繁忙航空枢纽的地位。

 00:11:20

那么希思罗机场能从伊斯坦布尔IGA学到什么？

▶ My mother, Kalinjai, is a board member of IGA Istanbul Airport and played a key role in its development.

我的母亲Kalinjai是伊斯坦布尔IGA机场的董事会成员，在其发展中发挥了关键作用。

▶ Good morning and it's great to have you with us on the program.

早上好，很高兴你能参加我们的节目。

▶ So what did you do right then in developing Istanbul's airport?

那么你们在开发伊斯坦布尔机场时做对了什么？

▶ I think commitment and understanding the benefits that the airport can bring to the city.

我认为是承诺和理解机场能为城市带来的好处。

 00:11:49

▶ Sometimes airports are seen as transportation projects but the airports are like ports are fundamental elements of the city.

有时机场被视为交通项目，但机场和港口一样是城市的基本要素。

▶ So it should be considered with their impact on the city.

因此应考虑它们对城市的影响。

▶ In our case, two studies we have started with is that one is the economic impact study and second is environmental impact study.

在我们的案例中，我们首先进行了两项研究：经济影响研究和环境影响研究。

▶ Economic impact study showed us that the new airport can be equivalent almost 5% of global GDP, national GDP.

经济影响研究表明，新机场几乎相当于全国GDP的5%。

 00:12:23

▶ And environmental reports showed us that noise pollution, air pollution would decrease with the new airport because existing all the airport in Istanbul was too busy and airplanes were traveling in the air and creating CO2 emissions.

环境报告显示，新机场将减少噪音污染和空气污染，因为伊斯坦布尔现有机场过于繁忙，飞机在空中飞行并产生二氧化碳排放。

▶ These discussions held with many people and communicated with people very professionally and we work with best people who are experts in their field and people got excited and wanted this airport in their city.

这些讨论与许多人进行，并以非常专业的方式沟通，我们与各自领域最优秀的专家合作，人们对此感到兴奋并希望这个机场建在他们的城市。

▶ So why then do you think is Heathrow not moving fast enough?

那么，为什么你认为希思罗机场进展不够快？

 00:13:03

▶ Where would you start off first if you were to sweep in and take control of the third runway?

如果你要接手并掌控第三条跑道，你会首先从哪里开始？

▶ Where is Heathrow tripping up?

希思罗机场在哪里出了问题？

▶ When we started building this Istanbul airport, we went many airports around the world, Atlanta, Hong Kong, Singapore to see what they have done.

当我们开始建设伊斯坦布尔机场时，我们去了世界各地的许多机场，如亚特兰大、香港、新加坡，看看他们做了什么。

▶ Because if there is something that someone else has done in the world before you, it should be honored and it should be discovered.

因为如果世界上有人在你之前做过某些事情，那应该被尊重和发现。

 00:13:33

▶ So we did that.

所以我们这样做了。

▶ If I were to develop Heathrow expansion, I would create a better dialogue with other people who had done a similar thing.

如果我要开发希思罗机场的扩建项目，我会与做过类似事情的人建立更好的对话。

▶ So I think that might be something I would start doing.

所以我认为这可能是我会开始做的事情。

▶ Is there a risk that London could lose its relevance when it comes to its place as a key transport hub and an airport hub?

伦敦作为关键交通枢纽和机场枢纽的地位是否存在失去相关性的风险？

 00:14:02

▶ What's at risk?

风险是什么？

▶ Global aviation trend is the movements are moving to East, so that's a threat for Heathrow on its own.

全球航空趋势是向东转移，这对希思罗机场本身是一个威胁。

▶ And airports in East, for example Dubai, Riyadh and as Istanbul we have already started, are increasing their capacity.

而东部的机场，例如迪拜、利雅得，以及我们已经开始的伊斯坦布尔，正在增加其容量。

▶ So if a London doesn't bring a holistic aviation infrastructure plan, I think it will be behind the race with airports, especially Istanbul to Dubai and maybe other Middle Eastern hubs.

因此，如果伦敦不提出一个全面的航空基础设施计划，我认为它将落后于与伊斯坦布尔、迪拜以及其他中东枢纽机场的竞争。

 The consumer slowdown is coming for fast food.

消费者放缓正在影响快餐业。

 Cover, an American dining chain that's popular for takeout salads and grain bowls saw its shares dropped 16% on Wednesday after reporting weak earnings.

Cover是一家以沙拉和谷物碗外卖闻名的美国餐饮连锁店，周三报告盈利疲软后股价下跌16%。

 The fast casual eatery missed second quarter same store sales expectations and cut its full year sales growth forecast for the very first time since it went public in 2023.

▶ And the Guest Seed Up Salad Bar Sweet Green is down to whopping 72% this year.

 00:17:05

▶ Now, usually what we call fast casual eateries, the kind of places you go for lunch to carry back to your workplace or sit and have with a friend for a half hour, do pretty well in sales even when the wider restaurant industry is seeing a decline in foot traffic.

通常我们所说的休闲快餐店，即那些你去吃午餐带回工作场所或与朋友坐半小时的地方，即使在更广泛的餐饮业客流量下降时，销售也相当不错。

▶ But it seems like the special place they occupy in consumers' hearts isn't justifying the bite they're taking out of consumers' wallets.
